What You Should Know About Volunteering at Mansfield Animal Shelter

Mansfield Animal Shelter appreciates its wonderful volunteers. Thanks to volunteers, we are able to provide excellent care for the animals. The guidelines below are designed to protect all parties, and avoid problems before they develop.

- 1. Assumption of Risk: All volunteers must understand that volunteering at the shelter could present some risk of harm to them. Volunteers must agree to hold harmless the Mansfield Animal Shelter, the volunteers, the Mansfield Shelter Friends, Inc., the Animal Humane Officer, and the Town of Mansfield for any injury that they may suffer while volunteering at the shelter, as stated in the volunteer's application.
- 2. Volunteers should understand that Mansfield Animal Shelter is not a no-kill shelter. If volunteers cannot accept that, they should not volunteer.
- 3. Volunteers who have disagreements with other volunteers, or with shelter policies, should report these issues to their shift captain, not to other volunteers.
- 4. Volunteers may not give information or represent the Mansfield Animal Shelter or Mansfield Shelter Friends to any media unless proper approval has been granted by the ACO or AWC or MSF. Failure to do so may result in release of volunteer.
- 5. If a volunteer is unable to come for his shift, he should contact his shift captain by email, phone, or as a last resort by leaving a message on the shelter answering machine.

Releasing a Volunteer

We've all heard the remark, "You can't fire me, I'm a volunteer!" Yes, it may be true that you're a volunteer, BUT volunteers should understand that volunteering at the shelter is a privilege. When a volunteer commits to be a part of the shelter organization, he/she is committing to follow the assignments and guidelines set forth by the A.C.O., the organization, and shift captain. Why? Because the Animal Control Officer is ultimately responsible, and the A.C.O. is the ultimate decision maker. There are times when it becomes necessary to release and replace a volunteer. There can be many reasons for it, including but not limited to:

- The volunteer does something completely contrary to shelter procedures and refuses to change.
- The volunteer does not come regularly to his/her shift.
- The volunteer is not productive, even after repeated counseling.
- The volunteer doesn't get along with the others at the shelter.
- The volunteer refuses to follow the leader's requests.
